Arvada recreation: something for everyone!

Take a break from the bustling business world and enjoy the wide variety of recreational facilities offered in and around Arvada. Whether you prefer the great outdoors or a consistent climate inside, there is an activity to match your aptitude. You can explore your creative side or assess your athletic abilities in local facilities such as the Apex Center, the Susan M. Duncan Family YMCA, the hundreds of miles of trails or even participate in team activities at the Long Lake recreational area. Each facility offers a comprehensive list of instruction options, team sports and athletic challenges. Here's the chance to enhance family time or pursue individual passions.

Businesses benefit by knowing that nearby quality activities are available for their employees and customers to enjoy as a healthy break from work. "Arvada residents are fortunate to have quality places to spend their leisure time," says Mike Miles, executive director of North Jeffco Park Recreation District. "It's a very symbiotic relationship."

The district was established 50 years ago with one outdoor pool. Today it manages indoor and outdoor pools, Indian Tree Golf Course, the Arvada Tennis Center, soccer fields, the Harold Lutz Sports Complex & Batting Cages as well as several recreation and fitness centers. Each facility offers a wide range of age-specific and family oriented activities. "The importance of recreation is very apparent with a growing demand for more recreation services as the population increases," Miles says.

Of course, the crown jewel of the area is the Apex Center, which includes two NHL ice rinks, a 23,000-square-foot water amusement park, natural rock climbing, and a cardio and conditioning area, all located in a park-like setting accessible via a regional trail system.

"The Apex Center is a unique recreation center. When we opened in September 2000, it was the only one of its kind in the nation," Miles says. Out-of-state visitors still travel to look at the 168,500-square-foot destination center that combines ice rinks, aquatic facilities, and weight rooms all under one roof. The center has hosted more than one million visits each year since the facility opened.

For those who prefer a solo hike or equestrian ride or even challenging trail biking, Arvada has an extensive park and trail system that includes more than 87 neighborhood parks and sports complexes and 600 acres of developed park property. A total of 2,900 acres of recreational facilities include open space and 55 playgrounds. The system of lakes and open space are connected by creeks, canals and trails. In addition, you can try your skills at two disc golf courses, three golf courses, one skateboard park and even find playtime for Fido at the one off-leash dog park. Long Lake Ranch Regional Park boasts six soccer fields, four of which are lighted, as well as three baseball and softball fields for sports fans.

When it comes to recreation in Arvada, the options are infinite! To learn more, visit Northjeffco.org or denverymca.org. -- LF
