

CENTRAL CITY

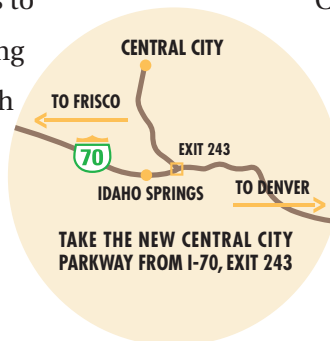

WELCOMES YOU

The Easy Part is Getting Here.
The Hard Part Will Be Deciding
What To Do First!

They call Central City the “Richest Square Mile On Earth.” It is rich in history, from the Opera House and museums to the distant memories of a mining town. It is rich in recreation with breathtaking scenery and endless trails for hiking, biking and even four-wheel driving. It is rich in comfort with a wide array of cozy bed-and-breakfasts and three diamond hotels to satisfy even the most spoiled of inner children. And now, it is rich with convenience with this 8.4 mile, four-lane miracle we like to call the Central City Parkway. A 35-minute drive out of Denver has never taken you so far out of the ordinary. Whether you’re looking to get a dose of history, arts, and shopping, or hit paydirt at the slots, it’s easy to strike it rich in Central City. The closest authentic mining town to Denver just got closer via I-70, exit 243.
